THE BOYLES OF KELBURNE
EARLS OF GLASGOW

THE following paper was prepared for insertion in the Scots Peerage, now in process of publication; and the conciseness suitable for such a work was aimed at in the compilation. Much has been omitted for the sake of brevity from the account of the older generations, which might, if inserted, have elucidated the evidence for the genealogical deduction; and it has not been thought necessary to cite authority for statements referring to recent times.

It now seems probable that it may be found necessary still further to abridge the article before insertion. I therefore print it as it stands, in order that a record may be preserved of all the facts which I have been able to verify, with the references to the authorities that prove them; and I think it well to use the type and form adopted in the Scots Peerage.

THE BOYLES OF KELBURNE, EARLS OF GLASGOW

THERE seems to be no doubt that the lands of Kelburne in Cunningham were held by ancestors of the Earls of Glasgow for many years before 1292, when the great fiefs of Largs and Cunningham, which came to John Baliol from Devorgilla his mother, became merged in the Crown of Scotland; but the records of their tenure have disappeared: and for long afterwards the succession to the lands can only be inferred from the occasional occurrence, in records and charters, of the name and designation of Boyle of Kelburne.

Sir George Mackenzie, who died in 1692, mentions as extant in his time a 'sasine of the lands of Kelburne given to Richard Boil, eldest son to — Boil of Kelburn and Marjory Cumin his wyfe, daughter to — Cumin of Rowallen, and this was in the reign of K. Al. 3,' (i.e. between 1249 and 1285-86).¹

Sir William Mure of Rowallan, who wrote in or before 1657, mentions a charter of certain lands in the fee of Rowallan granted by Gilchrist Mor in favour of Avicia his daughter and the heirs of her body,² which was confirmed between 1358 and 1370, by Robert, Steward of Scotland, Earl of Stratherne. The original dates from before the year 1300. A transumpt of the charter of confirmation was made on 21 January 1549 by decret of the Lords of Councill, at the instance of John Boyle of Kelburne.³

Under the same decret was transumed another charter of confirmation by Robert the Steward, of a charter conveying an annuallrent to be uplifted from the lands of Malderland, lying in the tenandry of Roualeyn, granted by Walter Cumin, Dominus de Roualeyn, in favour of Richard de Boill, Dominus del Calburne, from which it appears that the granter and his predecessors had been accustomed to receive the rent from the grantee and his predecessors (antecessores).⁴

This charter by Walter Cumin, which has been assigned to the reign of King David II. (i.e. 1329-1370-71),⁵ but which, it is now thought, may date from the end of that of Robert I., has been engraved in fac simile from the Kelburne Charter-chest.⁶ Sir William Mure says that the grantee 'is supposed (& not vnprobably) to have obtained in mariage the forsaid Anicia, and with her the lands forsaidis disponed to her by Sir Gilchrist, being certeinlie the lands of Polruskane as is evident from the bounding marches designed in the charter, which lands were bruikd by the successors of the said Ritchard for payment of ane pound of Comine Seed in name of Blensch ferme yearlie from these times.'⁷ But it would seem more probable that Richard de Boill the grantee and Richard Boil the husband of Marjory Cumin, who appears in the sasine noted by Sir George Mackenzie,⁸ were one and the same. According to Crawford, Richard and Marjory had a son Robert, who succeeded to Kelburne.¹ Possibly he married Avice Mure and thus brought Polnuskane into his family, with whom it remained, as did also Malderland, mentioned in Walter Cumin's charter, until the year 1632.²

This Robert is identified by Crawford³ as the Robert de Boyville del Counte de Are, who swore fealty to Edward I. of England at Berwick-on-Tweed 28 August 1296,⁴ and who served on an inquisition p. m. held the same day regarding the succession to lands in Ayrshire.⁵ His seal, 'S. Robti de Boyvilla,' is still attached to the fragment of a homage, and bears a bull's head cabossed.⁶ He is probably identical with the Robert de Bowill who witnessed a charter of the thirteenth century granted by Hew Francis, Lord of Blair, to James Francis his son, which was transumed in the year 1512 at the instance of David Blair of Adamton.⁷ Richard de Boyvile of the same county⁸ is identified in Remarks on the Ragman Roll⁹ and elsewhere as the ancestor of the Boyles of Rysholm, Par. Dalry. He is probably identical with the Ricardus de Boyville who is mentioned as a tenant under Fergus de Ardrossan, Knight, in a charter erecting certain lands pertaining to the latter into a free barony, temp. King Robert I. (1306-1329).¹⁰

The Boyles of Rysholm are said by Crawford to have been the first cadets of Kelburne;¹¹ but the precise connection cannot be traced. Hugo Boyd, Dominus de Rysholm, made a grant in free alms to the Abbey of Paisley, 7 February 1399.¹² The superiority of Rysholm afterwards became vested in the Lords Boyd, as proprietors of the barony of Dalry.¹³ After the forfeiture of that family in 1469 the lands were held in chief of the Crown by the Boyles,¹⁴ who also held in chief the barony of Wamphray in Annandale.¹⁵ The family failed in the person of John Boyle of Wamphray and Rysholm, whose daughter and heir, Katherine Boyle, was married, first, without issue, to John Johnstone, a cadet of the Johnstones of that ilk,¹⁶ and secondly, to Robert Scot,¹⁷ by whom she had a son and successor, also named Robert, who was infeft in the lands of Rysholm as heir to her, 10 November 1541.¹⁸ He died before 10 January 1549, when his brother Adam, with his father's consent, sold Wamphray.¹⁹ Katharine Boyle had died in 1524.²⁰

Rysholm had, many years before, been granted in feu-farm to a kinsman or cadet of the tenant-in-chief, or possibly of the family of Kelburne. His succession also failed in the person of Archibald Boyle of Rysholm, whose sister and heir, Katherine Boyle, parted in the year 1555 with all her lands to her well-beloved kinsman and friend John Boyle, then of Rysholm,²¹ i.e. of Kelburne.²²

On 24 July 1417, John Boyle of Calburne sat at Irvine on an assize composed of the best and most trusty men of the country, to adjudicate, in presence of Robert, Duke of Albany, the Governor, on opposing claims to certain lands.²³ On 20 July 1433, Patrick (or Sir Patrick) Boil of Kelburne, witnessed a charter granted by Janet of Cairns, and dated at the Church of Largs.²⁴ On 11 October 1446, Robert Boyle of Calburne was witness to a sasine of the lands of Rysholm given by Robert Boyd, Lord of Kilmarnock and Baron of Dalry, superior, to the noble man John Boyle of Wamphray.²⁵ This Robert was possibly succeeded by a son of the same Christian name, seeing that of gilt spurs for duplication of his blench farm. The sale price of these was credited by the Sheriff of Ayr in his account of receipts from 3 July 1451 to 18 September 1456.¹ He may have had

II. A son, who died v. p., leaving a son²

III. WILLIAM BOYLE, who had sasine of Kelburne in or before 1477.³ He appears as witness to a sasine given to James, Lord Boyd, 25 October 1482.⁴ William Boyle had sasine 13 July 1493, as heir to Robert Boyle his grandfather, of the office of Mare or Maor of fee (hereditary Sergeant or Coroner) within the bounds of the lordship of Largs, the burn of Polgare on the south and the Calburne on the north; following on a Chancery precept issued on his retour as heir of his said grandfather.⁵

William Boyle may have been son of Robert (I.) and grandson of the Robert who witnessed the sasine of 11 October 1446.⁶ If this were proved, his grandfather would be numbered I., and his father II. Again, there is a tradition that a Laird of Kelburne was killed 11 June 1488 at Sauchieburn, fighting on the side of King James III. Crawford, who is said to have had access to the Kelburne Muniments, states this as a fact. He gives the Laird's name as John, and adds that the family estates were forfeited, and afterwards restored to his son.⁷ But no contemporary documents to this effect are now at Kelburne; and the books of Responsions from 1481 to 1492, which would doubtless have demonstrated the truth or falsehood of the story, are missing from the Records, as are also their Indexes. It seems possible that the William who had sasine of Kelburne in or before 1477 may have perished at Sauchieburn, leaving a son of the same name, who may have been reinstated in the lands, and afterwards had the sasine of 13 July 1493; and that the second William may have died soon afterwards, and been succeeded by a brother or son (IV.) named John: or that the John killed at Sauchieburn (as stated by Crawford) may have been the elder brother of the second William, and not Laird, but Younger of Kelburne.

IV. JOHN BOYLE of Kelburne had sasine, 28 October 1495, of Kelburne and pertinents as lawful heir of William Boyle his father, proceeding on precept from Chancery; holding in blench farm of the Crown on payment of a pair of spurs.⁸ He had a charter from King James V. of the lands of South Ballochmartine in the Island of Cumbræ and shire of Bute, dated at Falkland 8 April 1536.⁹ He granted the same lands to his son Robert 6 October 1554.¹⁰ On the last day of February 1540-41 he had an exemption from personal military service on account of infirmity.¹¹ He died between 27 June and 14 August 1555.¹²

He seems to have been more than once married. His elder children were:—

1. Patrick Boyle, eldest son, styled 'of Polruskane.' Of him after (vide p. 9).
2. John Boyle, second son of John Boyle of Kelburne, had in conjunct fee with Katharine Wallace, his spouse, a Crown charter of fen-farm of the 5 merk lands of Ballikewin in the Island of Cumbræ and sheriffdom of Bute, and also of the office of Serjandrie of the said island; with remainder to the heirs-male of their bodies, whom failing, to the eldest heir-female without division; dated 8 April 1536.¹³ On 14 April 1557 he had charter of feu-farm with his said spouse, dated at Paisley, of the glebe and kirklands of Largs, granted by John, Archbishop of St. Andrews and Abbot of Paisley.¹⁴ He was alive 18 September 1583.¹⁵

In a charter of the lands of Kelburne granted by John Boyle of Kelburne in favour of John Boyle his grandson and apparent heir, which was confirmed 29 May 1549,¹⁶ John Boyle of Ballikewin and Robert Boyle, who were witnesses, were designated 'sons natural' of the grantor. The designation does not in this instance imply illegitimacy. That John of Ballikewin the second son, and Robert, afterwards of Ballochmartine, probably the third son, of John Boyle of Kelburne, were lawfully begotten is clear from many circumstances. They were doubtless called as witnesses to the charter in question in their capacity as the next heirs after their nephew the grantee and his issue-male; and the notary probably styled them 'sons natural' to emphasise the fact that they were 'sons of the body' of the grantor. Their attestation implied, as was usual in such cases, consent to, and acknowledgment of, the succession settled by the charter. Their names occur very frequently in the records, and in writs at Kelburne; but neither is ever designate 'son natural' save in this one instance.

John Boyle married Katherine Wallace before 8 April 1536.¹ Crawford states that this lady (the wife of John Boyle, first of Bellikewin, 'lineal ancestor of Bellikewin the heir-male of the old house of Kelburne') was daughter of Wallace of Cairnhill, and widow of Pearstoun.² She was probably the Katharine Wallis who, with Robert Barclay of Pearstoun her spouse, was grantee in a charter dated 15 September 1518.³ They had issue:—

- (1) John Boyle, designate as 'Younger of Ballikewin' 29 September 1572⁴ to 18 September 1583.⁵ He succeeded his father, and died 20 August 1599.⁶

He married, first, Janet Cunningham, daughter of Alexander Cunningham of Toir, by Margaret Barclay,⁷ by whom he had:—

- i. William Boyle, eldest son, who had Crown charter of feu-farm of Ballikewin, etc., dated 20 July 1595, with remainder to the heirs-male of his body, whom failing, to his nearest and lawful heirs-male bearing the name and arms of Boyle.⁸ On 1 November 1614 he leased the lands of Moyle in the manor of Donboy lying in the precinct of Portlough, co. Donegal, from John (afterwards Sir John) Cunningham of Crawford, his brother-in-law, who was one of the undertakers for the settlement of Ulster.⁹ In 1638 he disposed the glebe and kirklands of Largs, commonly called Downiescroft, to his kinsman William Boyle in Kelburnefoot.¹⁰

He married Margaret Kelso, relict of — Cunningham of Third Part,¹¹ (who was alive 22 August 1622¹²), and had issue:—

- (i) John Boyle, who, as his son and heir-apparent, had sasine, with his future spouse, of half the lands of Ballikewin, 22 August 1622.¹³ He succeeded his father, and was designate 'of Ballikewin' 31 March 1648.¹⁴

He married, contract dated 8 August 1622, tocher 1400 merks, Agnes Boyd, daughter of Robert Boyd of Portingross,¹⁵ and seems to have been succeeded by a son:—

- a. Robert Boyle, who appears on 4 May 1667 designate as 'of Ballikewin.'¹⁶ The next of this family who appears was

- (a) James Boyle of Ballikewin, who was a Commissioner of Supply for Bute in 1696,¹⁷ and 1704.¹⁸ On 31 March 1721 he disposed to John, Lord Boyle, the 5 merk lands of Ballikewin and Culoch, Par. Meikle Cumbræ, being designate eldest lawful son and heir now on life of the deceased — Boyle of Ballikewin.¹⁹ He died before 12 June 1740.²⁰

He married Janet Bannatyne, and by her²¹ had issue:—

- α. John Boyle, clerk of the customs at Irvine.

He married Marion Glasgow,²² and by her²³ had issue:—

- (α*) Agnes Boyle, born 12 December 1742.²⁴

- (β*) Janet Boyle, born 16 June 1744.²⁵

- β. Elizabeth Boyle, who was proclaimed 12, and married 23, June 1740 to Robert Bannatyne, son to Robert

Bannatyne, sometime of Loubas; being designate daughter to the deceased James Boyle of Ballikewin.¹

(ii*) Robert Boyle, who with another took up the lands of Donboy in the Manor of Donboy, precinct of Portlough, co. Donegal, on 1 November 1614,² is designate 'of Moyle' as a witness to the disposition of Downiescroft by his father and brother, dated at Moyle 29 June 1633.³

(iii*) James Boyle, who on the date above-mentioned took up with others the lands of Moyfadda, also in the Manor of Donboy,⁴ seems to have been another son.

ii. John Boyle, who is mentioned in the testament of his father, John Boyle second of Ballikewin, designate as 'in Toir, his second son.'⁵ He was escheated 24 May 1595 for not finding lawburrows to certain persons;⁶ his father, however, gave caution for him in 500 merks 12 June following.⁷

iii.* Archibald Boyle, who is mentioned in his father's testament.⁸ He was cautioner under the testament of Marion Crawford, spouse of John Boyle of Kelburne, confirmed 2 June 1601, being designate 'of Ballikewin.'⁹

iv.* Thomas Boyle, who was put to the horn for not finding lawburrows, at the same time as John his brother.¹⁰

John Boyle (1) second of Ballikewin, married, secondly, before 27 February 1593, Marjorie (or Marion) Fraser, relict of John Montgomerie of Flatt.¹¹ She seems to have come of the family of Fraser of Knock. She died in the year 1601.¹² By her he had:—

v.* Jeane Boyle, who is mentioned in the testaments of her father and mother.¹³ She was married, contract dated at Largs 5 June 1691, to her 2500 merks, to John Cunningham of Crawford, brother of James Cunningham of Glengarnock.¹⁴ Her husband was an undertaker for the settlement of Ulster,¹⁵ and was afterwards knighted.

(2) David Boyle, second son of John Boyle first of Ballikewin, had from Alexander Montgomery of Figgidoch, charter of the 26s./8d. lands of Figgidoch in the Island of Greater Cumbræ, with the Manor Place, etc., already occupied by him, dated 29 September 1572, and confirmed 20 March 1578-79.¹⁶ A Crown charter of feu-farm of the same lands (plus another half-merk land), dated 20 July 1595, was granted to him and the heirs-male of his body, whom failing, to his nearest and lawful heirs-male bearing the name and arms of Boyle.¹⁷ He died in the month of June 1614.¹⁸

He married first, before 12 November 1599, Katharine Boyd,¹⁹ said to have been a daughter of James Boyd, son to Lord Boyd,²⁰ and had issue:—

i. Robert Boyle, who, designate as eldest lawful son of David Boyle of Figgidoch, had charter of sale, dated 20 April 1583, granted by Hugh Montgomerie of Portry, with remainder to James Boyle, his brother-german, of the £5 lands of Portry in the island of Greater Cumbræ, sasine whereon was taken 17 May following.²¹ He had, as kindly tenant, Crown charter of feu-farm of the same lands, dated 20 July 1595, with remainder to the heirs-male of his body, whom failing, to his nearest and lawful heirs-male bearing the name and arms of Boyle.²² He purchased the lands of Figgidoch from Archibald Boyle, his half-brother,²³ and had sasine thereof 27 January 1616.²⁴ He died in the month of September 1626.²⁵

He married Margaret Montgomerie (probably daughter of Hugh Montgomerie of Portry),²⁶ who was alive 24 July 1622.²⁷ His lawful son and apparent heir

(i) John Boyle, married, contract dated on or before 24 July 1622, Dorothea Conyngbame, daughter lawful of James Conyngbame of Ballyachen, Gentleman.²⁸ He seems to have died v.p., and to have been succeeded by his infant son

a. James Boyle, who, on 25 January 1648, being then of lawful age, was served heir to David Boyle, his great-grandfather, in the lands of Figgidoch, which had been in non-entry for thirty-three years, and to Robert Boyle his grandfather in the lands of Portry, twenty-one years in non-entry.¹ On 1 July 1651 he granted charter of Figgidoch irredeemably to David Boyle of Kelburne; sasine thereof followed on the evening of the same day.² On 15 March 1681 (or 1682) he granted letters of alienation and disposition of the lands of Portry in favour of John Boyle of Kelburne, without reversion, but with reservation of his liferent.³ He was alive in 1696.⁴

(ii*) James Boyle, who several times appears as tutor of Portry, e.g. on 11 May 1631⁵ and 22 August 1635,⁶ seems to have been another son of i. Robert Boyle of Portry, and to have been designate 'in Portry' 9 June 1627.⁷

ii.* James Boyle, son of David Boyle of Figgidoch, first appears as substitute to his brother Robert i. in the charter of Portry dated 20 April 1583.⁸ He lived at Largs, and was a merchant and shipowner. On 11 January 1617 he had, with Margaret Crawford, his spouse, Crown charter of the 2 merk lands of Halkishirst, near Largs,⁹ proceeding on the resignation, made on the same date, of John Erskine of Halkishirst, his spouse and son.¹⁰ He was alive 3 May 1651.¹¹

He married, first, contract dated at Glasgow 31 December 1601, Margaret Crawford, daughter to the then deceased John Crawford, younger of Bedland. On 1 January 1605, David Boyle of Figgidoch, his father, who was a party to the contract, gave sasine propriis manibus to his son and future daughter-in-law, in implement of some of its provisions, of certain lands appertaining to him in the parish of Govane.¹² The issue of this marriage was

(i) David Boyle, eldest son, who, in 1635, married his kinswoman Grizel Boyle, heiress of Kelburne. Of him after. (Vide p. 12.)

(ii*) James Boyle, merchant in Glasgow.¹³

(iii*) Janet Boyle, who was married to James Stewart, younger, merchant and burgess of Glasgow, and had issue.¹⁴ She died in the year 1641; her husband survived her.¹⁵

(iv*) Margaret Boyle, lawful daughter to James Boyle of Halkishirst, who was married, contract dated at the Spittle Flat of Fairlie 16 December 1637, to Robert Blakburne, lawful son of David Blakburne in Fairlie,¹⁶ and had issue.

James Boyle of Halkishirst married, secondly, contract dated at the Kelburne Place 22 August 1622, tocher £1000, Jean Barclay, only child of the then deceased Mr. Gavin Barclay, brother to William Barclay of Perceiton,¹⁷ and burgess of Irvine.¹⁸ This marriage was dissolved in the beginning of the year 1632;¹⁹ the husband had been 'absent from the country in his trade for two and a half years or thereby,' before 8 July 1631.²⁰

iii.* Margaret Boyle, who was married, contract dated at the Kirktown of Largs, 5 November 1591, tocher 450 merks, to John M'Gibboun, son of Duncan M'Gibboun in Kelburnefoot.²¹

David Boyle of Figgidoch (2) married, secondly, Margaret Crawford, lawful daughter of Patrick Crawford of Carlsburn, parish Innerkip,²² and relict of John Park of Gilbertfield. She was styled his future spouse 17 May 1583.²³ By her²⁴ he had:—

iv.* Archibald Boyle, who, on 26 December 1615, being then of lawful age, was served heir to unquhile David Boyle of Portry in the 2½ merk lands of Figgidoch.²⁵ He parted with those lands to Robert Boyle of Portry, his half-brother; sasine thereof was given 27 January 1616.²⁶

v.* John Boyle, designate 'brother to the said Archibald,' and who seems to have been a younger brother, was a witness to the sasine of 27 January 1616.²⁷

3. Robert Boyle had from iv. John Boyle of Kelburne, his father, charter of sale of the 5 merk lands of South Ballochmartine in the island of Greater Cumbræ, with remainder to the heirs-male of his body, whom failing, to the heirs whatsoever of the granter, and reserving liferent; dated 6 October 1551,² and confirmed 8 February 1555-56.³

The arms of Boyle of Ballochmartine are given in Pont's MS., which was compiled in and after the year 1624, as 'three horns of a hart,' the paternal coat, 'with a mullet for difference.'⁴ As a mullet was a usual mark of cadency for a third son in Scotland as elsewhere,⁵ it seems a legitimate inference that Robert came third in the family.

He died in the year 1572.⁶ His son and heir

(1) John Boyle, had sasine, 15 June 1574, of the 5 merk lands of Meikle Ballochmartine, proceeding on a precept from Chancery dated 8 June, which followed on retour; the lands having been two years in non-entry.⁷ On 20 July 1595, as kindly tenant of South Ballochmartine, he had charter of these lands in feu-farm, with remainder to the heirs-male of his body, whom failing, to John Boyle of Kelburne and his heirs-male whatsoever bearing the name and arms of Boyle.⁸ He died in the year 1635.⁹

He married Marion Crawford.¹⁰ His eldest lawful son

i. John Boyle, appears with his father 19 November 1603, when he is designate 'burgess of Irvine,'¹¹ 21 April 1614,¹² etc. On 11 February 1606 he had from his father charter of the 5 merk-lands of South Ballochmartine, with the Manor Place, etc., in conjunct fee with Agnes Boyle, his future spouse, liferent being reserved;¹³ which charter was confirmed 9 August 1619.¹⁴ On 27 May 1618 he had sasine on a feu-charter granted by Archibald, Earl of Argyll, of the lands of Eskannilbeg and 2 merk lands of Wagill, in the lordship of Kintyre, co. Tarbet.¹⁵ He died in the year 1610.¹⁶

He married, after 11 February 1606, his kinswoman, Agnes Boyle (fifth) lawful daughter of John Boyle of Kelburne (vide p. 11).¹⁷ She survived him, and died between 30 May and 9 August 1619.¹⁸ By her¹⁹ he had

(i) Patrick Boyle, who was served heir to his father in the lands of South Ballochmartine, 27 March 1619.²⁰ On 30 May 1619 he, with Agnes Boyle, his mother, granted charter of alienation and sale of those lands irredeemably, in favour of David Boyle, fiar of Kelburne,²¹ which charter was confirmed 9 August 1619.²² Sasine thereon followed 15 June 1650.²³

He married Elizabeth Campbell, daughter of Hew Campbell, Commissary of Kintyre.²⁴

a. Fenella (Fenella) Boyle was served heir, 13 September 1683, to John Boyle of Eskannilbeg, her grandfather, who died in the year 1635, in the 3 merk lands of Eskannilbeg, the 2 merk lands of Wagill, and certain lands on the water of Lochaid, all in the lordship of Kintyre, co. Tarbet; the whole had been in non-entry for forty-seven years.²⁵ On 23 October 1683 she gave sasine of the same lands to Archibald M'Alester, in Towart in Arran (also designate 'in Dunadam in Arran'), her spouse.²⁶ On 6 March 1701 the spouses resigned the lands on the water of Lochaid into the hands of Archibald, Earl of Argyll, the superior.²⁷ It does not appear who Fenella's father was. Sasine of the whole of the above-mentioned lands was given on 27 and 28 May 1618 by John Boyle, Younger of Ballochmartine, to Alexander Boyle, designate his natural son.¹

- ii.* Alexander Boyle, who, designate as lawful son of John Boyle of Ballochmartine, was a witness to the contract of marriage of John Cunningham of Crawford and Jean Boyle, daughter of John Boyle of Bellikewin, dated 5 June 1601.² He may be identical with a merchant of the same name, who was resident in Largs in 1655.³

4.* William Boyle (son of iv. John Boyle of Kelburne), styled 'in Dumbertaine,' had sasine 13 August 1543 of six merks' worth of the lands of Braidshaw, in the parish of Dalry, to be held of his father and succeeding superiors in free blench. He resigned those lands 25 May 1549 in favour of Elizabeth Crawford, daughter and heir of the then deceased John Crawford of Giffordland (probably his niece).⁷ He appears to have acted as tutor to John Boyle of Polruskane, his nephew, and to have married and left issue:—

7.* Elizabeth Boyle is said to have been a daughter of John Boyle of Kelburne, and to have been married to Robert Cunningham, second son, and eventually heir, of Robert Cunningham of Auchincharvie. He succeeded his brother Edward, who was slain by Nigel Montgomerie, son of Hugh, Earl of Eglinton, before 13 March 1523.¹²

8.* Margaret Boyle, first wife of John Crawford of Giffordland (who was killed at the battle of Pinkie 10 September 1547), is also given as a daughter of John Boyle.¹³

John Boyle of Kelburne (iv.) married, lastly, Agnes Ross,¹⁴ who survived him.¹⁵ By her¹⁶ he had:—

V. PATRICK BOYLE (of Polruskane), son and heir-apparent of iv. John Boyle of Kelburne, had a charter of sale, dated 21 September 1542, granted by his kinsman, Archibald Boyle of Rysholm, of the 4 merk land of the Mains of Rysholm.¹ He died v.p. His name disappears from record about 1547, and he may perhaps have been killed at the battle of Pinkie. He was summoned to appear before the Lords of Council 12 March 1548, as were also John Boyle his son and apparent heir, and others, including Mungo Mure of Rowallan;² but the latter certainly fell at Pinkie.³ Patrick Boyle's son,

VI. JOHN BOYLE, after the death of his father, and before that of his grandfather, was styled 'of Polruskane.'⁴ On 28 April 1549 John Boyle of Kelburne granted the lands of Kelburne to John Boyle, his grandson and apparent heir, by a charter which was confirmed 29 May 1549.⁵ On 9 May 1554 John Boyle, grandson and heir-apparent of John Boyle of Kelburne, had sasine, as undoubted and nearest heir of the deceased Patrick Boyle, his father, of the 4 merk land of the Mains of Rysholm.⁶ He died before 26 February 1559-60.⁷

He married Agnes Fraser, who survived him, and was married, secondly, before 14 March 1561-62, to Patrick Crawford of Auchinames.⁸ She is said to have been daughter of John Fraser of Knock by Margaret, only child and heir of Sir John Stuart of Glanderston.⁹ She died 6 January 1595.¹⁰ By her John Boyle of Kelburne had:—

1. JOHN BOYLE, who succeeded; of him after.

2.* Thomas Boyle, who became a notary¹¹ and a burgess of Irvine, and was afterwards tutor of Galston.¹² He died in the month of August 1614.¹³ He married Janet Barclay (styled Lady Galston), relict of William Stewart, Younger of Galston,¹⁴ and by her¹⁵ had issue:—

VII. JOHN BOYLE of Kelburne was of lawful age when he succeeded his father (before 26 February 1559-60). On 1 June 1560 he had sasine of the lands of Kelburne, etc., proceeding on precept of Clare Constat from Chancery in his favour as heir of his father.¹⁷ On 15 July 1583 he was served heir to his great-grandfather (iv. John Boyle) in the office of Maor of fee within the bounds of the lordship of Largs, etc.¹⁸ He was a most zealous loyalist in the service of Queen Mary during the civil wars.¹⁹ On 21 November 1577 he seems to have executed a bond of man-rent in favour of Robert, Lord Boyd, under the style of John Boyle of Rysholm, whereby he bound himself, with his

He married Marion Crawford, second daughter of Hugh Crawford of Kilbirnie. Her mother was Isobel Barelay,⁴ daughter of David Barelay of Ladyland,⁵ second wife of the said Hugh. Marion Crawford died in the month of October 1596.⁶ John Boyle had by her:—

1. JOHN BOYLE, who succeeded; of him after.

2. Robert Boyle, who was educated at the University of Glasgow and laured in 1604.⁸ He settled in Ireland, and was at Carrickmacross on 22 May 1665. He married and had an only child:—

(1) Marie Boyle, who had been married, before that date, to George Makullo.⁹

3. James Boyle, who seems to have been educated at the University of Glasgow,¹⁰ became a writer in Edinburgh,¹¹ and was Procurator-Fiscal of the Commissariat of Glasgow from the year 1623 till his death,¹² and Chamberlain of the barony of Glasgow.¹³ He died between 12 March and 13 June 1639.¹⁴ He married Margaret Smyth.¹⁵

4. *William Boyle*¹⁶ on 30 August 1632 undertook to raise a company of 100 soldiers and transport them to Melville, in Spruistland, for service under himself as Captain in the regiment commanded by Sir George Cunningham, Knight, in the army of Gustavus Adolphus.¹⁷ He seems subsequently to have lived at Kelburnefoot; and to have purchased in 1638 from his kinsman, William Boyle of Ballikewin, the glebe and kirklands of Largs, commonly called Downiescroft,¹⁸ which were afterwards acquired by David Boyle of Kelburne.¹⁹

He married, first, Christian Power, daughter of Hew Power, merchant,²⁰ by whom he seems to have had a son:—

(1) John Boyle,²¹ who probably died unmarried.

He married, secondly, Elizabeth Maxwell, by whom he had issue:—

(2) William Boyle, styled, 22 January 1652, eldest lawful son of William Boyle of Downiescroft.

He married Marion Hamilton, sister-german of Sir Robert Hamilton of Silverton Hill.²²

9. Agnes Boyle, who was married to her kinsman John Boyle, eldest lawful son of John Boyle of South Ballochmartine (vide p. 7); she was his future spouse 11 February 1606.¹⁰ She died between 30 May and 9 August 1619.¹¹
10. Elizabeth Boyle, who is mentioned with the other younger children in her mother's testament,¹² was married to Robert Sempill, burgess of Renfrew, styled 'of Mylnbank,'¹³ said to have been a relative of Robert, Lord Sempill.¹⁴ All six daughters had issue.¹⁵

VIII. JOHN BOYLE of Kelburne, born about 1585, was admitted a student of the University of Glasgow 10 March 1601.¹⁶ He was 'a learned gentleman, especially in the law';¹⁷ and Robert, sixth Lord Boyd, writing to Thomas, Earl of Melrose, on 30 May 1627, says of him, 'he is thought to be ane verie wyse man.'¹⁸ On 23 May 1618 he had sasine of Rysholm, etc., as heir to his father, proceeding on precept of Clare Constat from the superior.¹⁹ On 25 October 1626 he was appointed member of a commission for searching for papists, etc.²⁰ In or before 1628 he was appointed by the heritors of the sheriffdom of Ayr one of two commissioners for attending the commission concerning the royal edict of revocation of church lands.²¹ On 9 July 1628 he had a grant of the office of Commissary of Glasgow,²² but he had acted as judge of the Commissary Court there from October 1625, and he continued to discharge the duties of the office until July 1638.²³ M'Ure says, 'he was forced to dispoise the office to those that had the power in their hands after the troubles began, because he was very firm and an inflexible royalist.'²⁴ He was elected Rector of the University of Glasgow 1 March 1630, and again 1 March 1637.²⁵ On 12 October 1630 he was nominated member of an important commission for the revision of the law of Scotland.²⁶ On 5 August 1631 he had from

William, Viscount of Stirling, a disposition of sale and resignation of the superiority of the lands of Kelburne, Halyblair, Halkishirst, and Kirkland, and of the barony of the burgh of Largs, etc.¹ In 1633 he was appointed a commissioner for the valuation of teinds;² and on 21 October 1634, as Commissary of Glasgow, member of a commission for the suppression of papistical practices.³ He remained a staunch and zealous royalist till his death,⁴ in the month of May 1650.⁵

He married, contract dated at Glasgow, 9 March 1611, Agnes Maxwell, only surviving daughter of the then deceased Sir John Maxwell of Nether Pollok, Knight; tocher 9000 merks. The contract passed with consent of Sir John Maxwell of Nether Pollok, Knight, her brother.⁶ It was expressly arranged before the marriage that if her brother should predecease her without issue, and Agnes should therefore be entitled to succeed him in any of his lands, she was to renounce them, with consent of her husband, in favour of Sir John's heir-male. In accordance with this agreement she and her only child nearly forty years afterwards consented to the disposition of the estate of Pollok by Sir John Maxwell, in favour of his heir-male.⁷ The lands of Polruskane and Maldislands were settled in liferent upon Agnes Maxwell by the bridegroom; and when, with her consent, these lands were sold in 1632, other lands were substituted for them.⁸ Thomas Cochrane, elder son of the Honble. Thomas and Lady Gertrude Cochrane,⁹ as representing Agnes Maxwell, is now heir of line of the original family of Maxwell of Pollok.¹⁰ Agnes Maxwell was alive 22 March 1665.¹¹

John Boyle of Kelburne had by her an only child:—

IX. GRIZEL BOYLE, who was married, contract dated at Edinburgh 5 August 1635, to her kinsman David Boyle, eldest son of James Boyle of Halkishirst, mentioned above (p. 6).¹² She was served heir of John Boyle of Kelburne, her father, in Rysholm, etc., 7 September 1653,¹³ and was alive in 1685.¹⁴

David Boyle had sasine of Halkishirst from his father, and of Kelburne from John Boyle of Kelburne, also of Rysholm, etc., in conjunct fee with Grizel his future spouse, 22 August 1635.¹⁵ He acquired the lands of South Ballochmartine in 1649, Figgidoeh in 1651, Downiescroft in 1653,¹⁶ and the lands and barony of Fairlie in 1657,¹⁷ besides other lands. He was Commissioner of Supply for Ayrshire and Bute in 1656 and 1659, Commissioner of Excise for Ayrshire, and a Justice of Peace in 1663.¹⁸ He died in the year 1672.¹⁹ He had by Grizel Boyle:—

1. JOHN BOYLE, who succeeded; of him after.

2. lawful son of David Boyle of Kelburne), in conjunct fee with his future spouse.¹ He had commissions, dated 19 July 1681 and 18 March 1685, to represent the burgh of Irvine in the Parliament of Scotland.² He was Commissioner of Supply for Ayrshire in 1690.³ He died before 28 February 1710.⁴

He married, contract dated at Irvine 27 February 1668, Janet Barclay, who was the youngest lawful daughter of Mr. Robert Barclay, late Provost of Irvine; and with her he got 20,000 merks, the estate of Montgomerieston, and property in Irvine.⁵ In consequence he took for a time the name of Barclay. The issue of this marriage was:—

- (1) James Boyle, only son, born circa 1673,⁶ who was served heir in general to his father 28 February 1710.⁷ He was appointed a Commissioner of Exchequer for North Britain 30 March 1709, and again 6 May 1714.⁸ He lived at Irvine, and was Provost of the burgh in 1752.⁹ He succeeded to Smiddieshaw¹⁰ as nearest heir to Margaret Boyle of Smiddieshaw, his cousin-german.¹¹ He had Crown charter of Montgomerieston, proceeding on his own resignation, dated at Edinburgh 22 June 1752.¹² He died unmarried 17 October 1753, and was buried at Irvine.¹³ He was succeeded in his lands by his sisters' children.¹⁴
- (2) Grizel Boyle, who was married to George Maxwell of Southbarr, and had issue.¹⁵
- (3) Margaret Boyle, who was married, contract dated 19 May 1707, to Alexander Kennedy of Drummellan, co. Ayr, and had issue.¹⁶

3*. Patrick Boyle, styled 'of Smiddieshaw' jure uxoris,¹⁷ was a burghess of Irvine, and bailie of the burgh in 1687;¹⁸ he is also styled collector of Irvine.¹⁹ He died between 8 March 1716²⁰ and 31 January 1721.²¹

He married, before 16 December 1712, Margaret Crawford, only lawful daughter and heir of William Crawford of Smiddieshaw, par. Dalgain (Sorn),²² by whom he had an only daughter

- (1) Margaret Boyle,²³ who succeeded to Smiddieshaw.²⁴ She died before 13 February 1740,²⁵ and was succeeded by James Boyle of Montgomerieston, her cousin-german.²⁶

4*. Robert Boyle, son lawful to David Boyle of Kelburne, was bound apprentice to Charles Gray, merchant in Glasgow, in the year 1657.²⁷ He acted as attorney at a sasine 24 March 1663.²⁸

5*. Thomas Boyle, brother-german to John Boyle of Kelburne,²⁹ appears to have settled in Ireland, and to have been styled 'of Tullochdonell, co. Louth' on 19 December 1680.³⁰

6. Mary Boyle, eldest daughter,³¹ was married, contract dated 15 April 1670,³² and confirmed 4 June 1670,³³ to William Wallace of Shewalton, and had issue.

7. Grizel Boyle, who was alive and unmarried 15 October 1673.³⁴

X. JOHN BOYLE, eldest son and apparent heir to David Boyle of Kelburne, together with his future spouse, had sasine of Kelburne 22 March 1665, proceeding on contract of marriage; the liferent of his parents being reserved.¹ He had commission 19 January 1671 to act as Sheriff of Bute during the minority of Sir James Stewart, the hereditary Sheriff;² and on 7 June 1678, 28 June 1681, and 14 March 1685, he received commissions to represent Buteshire in the Convention of Estates and Parliament of Scotland.³ He was Commissioner of Supply for Ayrshire in 1678 and 1685.⁴ On 2 March 1680 he had commission from the Treasury to supervise the levy of customs duties between Ayr and Glasgow.⁵ He acquired the lands of Hareshawmuir in 1681.⁶ On 28 February 1683 he was appointed Crown Commissioner for the forfeited estates of Argyll and Largie,⁷ and held the post until his death.⁸ On 28 July 1683 he was appointed head of a commission to take evidence against rebels, etc.⁹ On 29 August 1684 he had commission to administer the test to custom-house officials.¹⁰ In 1685 he was appointed Deputy Lieutenant to John, Marquis of Atholl, Lord-Lieutenant of Argyll and Tarbet,¹¹ and on 20 May 1685 he was nominated Joint Commissary-General of the King's army assembling under George, Earl of Dunbarton, for the suppression of Argyll's rebellion.¹² He was appointed a Lord of the Articles in 1685.¹³ He died in the month of October 1685.¹⁴

He married, first, contract dated 11 and 22 March 1665, Marion Steuart, eldest daughter of Sir Walter Steuart of Allanton, Knight.¹⁵ By her,¹⁶ who died shortly before 15 January 1672,¹⁷ he had:—

1. DAVID BOYLE, who succeeded; afterwards first Earl of Glasgow; of him after.
2. John Boyle,¹⁸ who became a surgeon. He was alive 20 May 1693,¹⁹ and appears to have been dead before 2 July 1715.²⁰
3. Walter Boyle,²¹ son lawful to John Boyle of Kelburne, entered prentice for five years to Edward Burd, skipper, 13 August 1684,²² and subsequently joined the Royal Navy. While serving on board H.M.S. Sussex he made a will, dated 20 May 1693, which appears never to have been proved.²³ He probably died shortly afterwards.
4. Mr. William Boyle, who became a writer in Edinburgh.²⁴ He was appointed one of the Commissioners of H.M.'s Customs in North Britain 5 June 1707, and again 18 July 1709;²⁵ and one of the Salt Commissioners for Scotland 9 April 1713.²⁶ He acquired the Shewalton estates from Edward Wallace his cousin, disposition dated 15 February 1715.²⁷ Sir Alexander Cuninghame of Corshill, his brother-in-law, having died deeply in debt, Mr. William purchased his principal estate of Corshill at a judicial sale,²⁸ apparently under a family arrangement; and afterwards his lands of Stewarton.²⁹ He executed a bond of tailzie, dated

23 July 1735, settling Shewalton on the Honourable Patrick Boyle his nephew, with remainder to the Honourable Patrick Boyle his grand-nephew; and providing that if ever his brother Lord Glasgow's heir of entail in possession of Kelburne should succeed to Shewalton, or his own heir of entail to the Kelburne estates, Shewalton was to go to the second son of the heir of entail so succeeding at his death.¹ He died unmarried 19 February 1740.²

5. Margaret Boyle, only lawful daughter, was married, contract dated at Kelburne 28 October 1686, and passed with consent of David Boyle of Kelburne her brother-german, tocher £10,000 Scots, to Sir Alexander Cuninghame of Corshill, Knight and Baronet, who was then under age,³ and had issue.

John Boyle of Kelburne married, secondly, contract dated 28 April 1676, Jean Mure, daughter of the then deceased Sir William Mure of Rowallan, Knight, and relict of Gavin Ralston, Younger, of that Ilk (her contract of marriage with whom was dated 25 February 1671).⁴ She brought to her second husband as tocher a sum of 1800 merks in cash and an annualrent of 1600 merks.⁵ By her⁶ he had two sons:—

6. James Boyle, fifth son, who was admitted student of the University of Glasgow 16 February 1694.⁷ He was alive on 13 February 1702,⁸ but appears to have been dead before 11 November 1706.⁹
7. Robert Boyle,¹⁰ who seems to have died before 13 February 1702.¹¹

XI. DAVID BOYLE, afterwards first Earl of Glasgow, was born in 1666.¹² He was a student of the University of Glasgow 8 February 1681.¹³ He was served heir in general to John Boyle of Kelburne, his father, 7 January 1686,¹⁴ was a Commissioner of Supply for Ayrshire in the same year,¹⁵ and again in 1690 and 1701; and for Buteshire in 1689, 1696, and 1704.¹⁶ He had commission, dated 5 March 1689, to represent Buteshire in the Convention of the Estates of Scotland;¹⁷ and sat again in Parliament for the same constituency from 15 March 1689 till 31 January 1699.¹⁸ On 16 March 1689 he signed the Act affirming the legality of the meeting of the Estates summoned by the Prince of Orange.¹⁹ On 7 August 1689 he had letters of disposition of the hereditary office of Sheriff of Bute, granted by Sir James Stuart of Bute,²⁰ who had, it is said, declined to take the oath of allegiance to William III.; but on 23 September 1692 he resigned the office into the hands of Sir James.²¹ He was elected Rector of the University of Glasgow 18 March 1690.²² On 29 June 1693 he became one of the tacksmen for the additional excise,²³ and held that position until 29 July 1699.²⁴ In 1694 he sold the lands of Halkshill (or Halkishirst), and others.²⁵ On 14 May 1695 he was chosen to act on the committee of Parliament for the security of the kingdom.²⁶ On 10 September 1696 he signed the 'Association' for the defence of King William III.²⁷ He took his seat in the Privy Council 8 June 1697, on nomination by royal letter dated at Kensington 31

March 1697.¹ On 10 January 1699 he was appointed member of the Commission of Parliament for settling the communications of trade,² and took the oath of allegiance.³ On 31 January 1699 he was created a Peer by the title of LORD BOYLE OF KELBURNE, STEWARTON, CUMBRAE, FENWICK, LARGS and DALRY, with remainder to his issue-male, whom failing to his heirs-male whatsoever.⁴ On 25 August 1702 he was nominated one of the Commissioners to treat for a Union between England and Scotland.⁵ On 2 January 1703 he was appointed a Commissioner of the Treasury and Treasurer Depute of Scotland,⁶ and he took the oath de fidei administratione 25 March 1703.⁷ On 12 April 1703 he was advanced to the dignity of EARL OF GLASGOW, VISCOUNT KELBURNE, and LORD BOYLE of STEWARTON, CUMBRAES, FENWICK, LARGS, and DALRY, with remainder to his heirs-male whatsoever,⁸ and on 11 February 1707 he had a charter of ratification erecting his estates into the Earldom of Glasgow.⁹ He was a steady supporter of the Protestant succession, and of the Duke of Queensberry's administration of Scottish affairs. He was again appointed Treasurer Depute 11 June 1705.¹⁰ On 27 February 1706 he was appointed a member of the second Union Commission,¹¹ and he took a principal part in carrying on the negotiations and perfecting the treaty. On 31 July 1706 he had a commission from Queen Anne as Bailie of the Regality of Glasgow, on the resignation of Charles, Duke of Richmond and Lennox.¹² He was High Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland in 1706,¹³ and from 1707 to 1710 inclusive.¹⁴ He was chosen to attend the first Parliament of Great Britain as a Representative Peer 13 February 1707,¹⁵ and was re-elected at the general election of 1708.¹⁶ On 16 June 1708 he was appointed Lord Clerk Register,¹⁷ and held the office until 1714. On the alarm of a Jacobite invasion in 1715 he offered to maintain 1000 men at his own expense for the King's service; and received a suitable acknowledgment of this timely proposal from King George I. through Charles, Viscount Townshend, Secretary of State for the Northern Department.¹⁸ He took an active part in promoting the arming and disciplining of the fencible men of Ayrshire, and was present at a muster of 6000 of them at Irvine 22 August 1715.¹⁹ He acquired the lands of Polkelly in 1699,²⁰ and entailed his estates on his heirs-male 2 July 1715.²¹ He died at Kelburne 31 October, and was buried at Largs 7 November 1733.²²

He married, first, 19 April 1687,²³ Margaret Lindsay, elder daughter of the then deceased Honourable Patriek Lindsay (or Lindsay-Crawfurd) of Kilbirnie, jure uxoris, (second son of John, tenth Lord Lindsay of the Byres, seventeenth Earl of Crawford, and first Earl of Lindsay), by Margaret Crawford, youngest lawful daughter of the then deceased Sir John Crawford of Kilbirnie, Knight.²⁴ The contract of marriage, which passed with consent of John Crawford of Kilbirnie, her brother (afterwards created Viscount Garnock), was executed at Leslie on the day of celebration, 19 April 1687; tocher 9000 merks.¹ Sir John Crawford had, on 31 July 1662, executed an entail settling his estates on his daughter Margaret and her issue;² in virtue of which, on the death (21 November 1833) of Lady Mary Lindsay-Crawford (the last descendant in the male line of the Honourable Patrick Lindsay and Margaret Crawford), George, fourth Earl of Glasgow, as next heir of the said Margaret, succeeded to Kilbirnie, etc.; the Lindsay-Crawford estates at the same time devolving on him as heir of the Honourable Patrick Lindsay.³ The elder son of the Hon. Thomas and Lady Gertrude Cochrane,⁴ granddaughter of Earl George, is now heir of line of the Lords Lindsay of the Byres, and the Garnock line of the Earls of Crawford;⁵ and co-heir of line of the family of Crawford of Kilbirnie.

David Boyle of Kelburne, afterwards Earl of Glasgow, had by Margaret Lindsay, his first wife (who died in the year 1695, aged twenty-six):⁶—

1. JOHN (BOYLE), Lord Boyle, who succeeded; of him after (vide p. 18).

2. Mr. Patrick Boyle, who was admitted Advocate 15 January 1712.⁷ On 19 February 1740 he succeeded to Shewalton, etc., under the bond of tailzie executed by Mr. William Boyle, his uncle.⁸ He was appointed, by royal letter dated 9 December 1746, a Senator of the College of Justice, and took his seat on the bench, under the title of Lord Shewalton, 19 December 1746.⁹ He was nominated one of the commissioners for improving the fisheries and manufactures of Scotland, 6 June 1749.¹⁰ He died unmarried on 31 March or 1 April 1761,¹¹ at Drumlanrig, and was buried at the church of Largs.¹²

3. Charles Boyle, who was probably born in 1691, or early in 1692,¹³ served in the Royal Navy, and was twice taken prisoner by the French; once apparently when H.M.S. Advice, Captain Lord Duffus, was captured, 26 June 1711.¹⁴ He left the service, and was Collector of Customs at Irvine from 1721¹⁵ till 1726.¹⁶ He subsequently went to America, and obtained a grant of land in Long Island, New York.¹⁷ He was appointed a Justice of Peace for the county of Queens 6 April 1738, and was still in the colony in June 1739,¹⁸ afterwards returning to Britain. He was designate 'Captain' 28 September 1759.¹⁹ He died 13 September 1770²⁰ in the county of Nottingham, unmarried.²¹ His will, dated at Thrumpton, 26 August 1770, was proved 22 December 1770.²²

David Boyle of Kelburne, afterwards Earl of Glasgow, married, secondly, contract dated at Edinburgh, 16 June 1697,²³ Jean Mure, only surviving child of William Mure of Rowallan, and relict of William Fairlie, younger of Brunsfield.²⁴ She was served heir in general, and in the lands and barony of Rowallan, to her father, 14 May 1702, at an inquisition held at Irvine,²⁵ and on 20 May executed a deed of entail settling her estates on her issue by her second husband, then Lord Boyle.²⁶ She died 3 September,²⁷ and was buried in the Abbey of Holyrood House 14 September, 1721.²⁸ The issue of this marriage was:—

4. The Honourable William Mure, who was known by his mother's surname only. He was alive 20 May 1702,²⁹ but died young.

Lady Jean succeeded to the fee of Rowallan 3 September 1724, and was served heir of provision general to her mother 9 July 1729.³ She died at Lawers 13 December 1729.⁴
7. Lady Anne Boyle, who was alive 29 March 1720;⁵ died unmarried.⁶
8. Lady Margaret Boyle, mentioned in her sister's contract of marriage.⁷ She appears to have been alive 27 February 1732;⁸ died unmarried.⁹

XII. JOHN (BOYLE), second Earl of Glasgow, was born at Kelburne in the month of April 1681.¹⁰ He was styled 'Lord Boyle' from 12 April 1703 till 31 October 1733, when he succeeded to the Peerage. He acquired the lands of Ballikewin in the island of Ombrae, by disposition granted by his kinsman James Boyle of Ballikewin, dated 31 March 1721.¹¹ He died at Kelburne 22 May, and was buried at Largs Church 29 May, 1740.¹²

He married, contract dated at Edinburgh 11 February 1707, tocher 60,000 merks, Helenor Morison, (third) daughter of William Morison of Prestongrange, co. Haddington.¹³ She died at Edinburgh 7 July 1767.¹⁴ They had issue:—

1. The Honourable David Boyle,¹⁵ who died young.
2. The Honourable William Boyle, born 15 September 1713,¹⁶ died 4 June 1715.¹⁷
